SCULPTURE SQUARE

REDEFINING SPACE

1999: History was made when a 130-year-old former chapel at 155 Middle Road was turned into Sculpture Square, Singapore's first arts venue for contemporary 3-D art.

2014: 15 years and hundreds of exhibitions later, SSQ, as the arts organisation has come to be known, moves on from its historical space to take on a new role in the advocacy of visual arts.

This book tells the story of the first 15 years of SSQ: from the time it boldly redefined what an old dilapidated chapel could do to defining the visual landscape of Singapore.
