When we see choice as a pen that allows us to author our own lives, then the possibilities seem endless. Every choice matters. It inextricably causes an individual to grow, stagnate or slide. Author Haresh Khoobchandani has experienced this first hand, starting out as a flight steward through to his career today as a global executive leader in the technology sector.

In Growth by Choice, Khoobchandani examines the connective tissue between choice and growth. He prompts reflection on the opportunities presented to us in the moments that matter – how they unlock every person's inner genius – the talent that is revealed when we align our lives to deeply felt personal values and goals. Poignant, reposeful yet invigorating, Khoobchandani's words are bent on stirring readers to face inconvenient questions that profoundly challenge their life's perspectives and priorities, much needed in this era of disruption.

Blending compelling stories of his own and three remarkable individuals with a tried and tested growth framework, Khoobchandani years Growth by Choice will serve to unlock, empower and inspire you to take practical steps to put your choices in the spotlight and consciously ask: "What must I do to thrive in this constantly changing world?"
