A Page In Time gathers the poems of Dr Rosemary Khoo, whose ebullient, yet perceptive voice transforms ordinary moments into lasting reflections on life, love, ageing, heritage and faith. With strikingly uncommon grace, wit and emotional clarity, Rosemary finds poetry in the everyday – in a remembered gathering, the passage of time, or the silence left by a beloved companion. Her poems celebrate life, embrace love, and honour the strength of women – with affection, compassion and gentle humour. Scholar, educator, linguist and community leader, Rosemary wore her accomplishments lightly. What remains most vividly in these pages is not the record of a distinguished life, but the generosity of a spirit in the ordinary. Rich in memory yet timeless in words, A Page In Time is an invitation to pause, to remember, and to discover the tapestry of one's life in the page of time.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

DR ROSEMARY KHOO, a Singaporean educationist, applied linguist, poet, and advocate for women's education and lifelong learning devoted her career to advancing language education, female empowerment, and fostering intellectual engagement across generations. She had penned more than 200 poems, exploring wide-ranging themes of people, ageing, heritage, life, love, women and Peranakan culture. Her poetry is a testament to her enduring love of language and her belief in its power to comfort, connect, and illuminate the human experience. This collection fulfils her desire to share her poetry with the world.

ON A PAGE IN TIME

“Rosemary is remembered as someone who always wrote poems... She deployed her ‘facility with words’ to record the world around her, and to also articulate the feelings of those who were less able to voice them – women and the aged.
 Turn the page in time and let Rosemary speak with you.
